

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. OF THE

CITY OF BUFFALO.

"Books are yours,
Within whose silent chambers treasure lies
Preserved from age to age; more precious far
Than that accumulated store of gold
And orient gems, which, for a day of need,
The Sultan hides deep in ancestral tombs.
These hoards of truth you can unlock at will."

PREFATORY NOTE.

The Library of this Association has now reached about twenty thousand volumes. It has therefore been deemed of first importance to furnish its members with the means of ascertaining, at a glance, all that the library possesses of the works of any known author, as well as all it has pertaining to any given and definite subject, by whomsoever written, and to locate each volume in such a manner that it may be readily ascertained whether the book be on the shelves or loaned out. This want, which was severely felt when the library possessed a much smaller number of books, imperatively demanded a catalogue. In compliance therewith this volume has been compiled.

While the Catalogue has been going through the press a considerable number of volumes has been added. When possible these have been inserted alphabetically in the body of the work; the balance have been placed in a Supplement at the end of the Catalogue. Consequently some books are entered under author in the principal vocabulary, under title in the Supplement, and vice versa. All books, however, in the possession of the library on the fifteenth of January, 1871, are fully represented herein.

"A library is not worth anything without a Catalogue; it is a Polyphemus without any eye in his head: and you must front the difficulties, whatever they may be, of making proper catalogues."—CARLYLE.

"There is no matter connected with the administration of a public library which can vie, in point of importance, with the character and the condition of its catalogues. However liberal its accessibilities, however able its chief, however numerous and well trained its staff, however large and well selected its store of books, it will fall lamentably short of the true standard of a good library, if its catalogues be not well constructed, well kept up with the growth of its collection, and thoroughly at the command of its frequenters."—EDWARDS.

"I am of opinion that a printed catalogue is a matter of first-rate importance. I think it most desirable to afford to the public, in as short a time, and in as compendious a form as can be effected, a printed catalogue. A manuscript catalogue will not adequately fulfill the objects that are required."—LORD MAHON (Earl Stanhope).

"Read, and fear not thine own understanding; this book will create a clear one in thee; and when thou hast considered thy purchase, thou wilt call the price of it a charity to thyself."—SHIRLEY.

terranean regions as to heat and cold; 4. Of the temperature of the submarine regions, as to heat and cold; 5. Relations about the bottom of the sea; 6. Bottom of the sea, continued; 7. Saltiness of the sea; 8. Memoirs for the natural history of mineral waters; 9. Titles proposed for the natural history of mineral waters, considered whilst in their proper channel; 10. Titles, when drawn out of their receptacle; 11. Titles, when considered as a medicine; 12. Of the natural and preternatural states of bodies, especially of air; 13. The description of the pneumatic engine and its use, and physico-mechanical experiments touching the air; 14. Doctrine of the spring and weight of the air defended; 15. Funicular hypothesis examined; 16. Funicular hypothesis, continued; 17. Aristotelian rarefaction examined; 18. Torrecellian experiments at the tops and feet of hills; 19. Measure of the force of the spring of air; 20. Objections against particular phenomena answered; 21. Explication of rarefaction; 22. An explication of the rota Aristotelica; 23. An abstract of what is further contained relating to the weight and spring of the air in the examen of Mr. Hobbs his dialogus physicus; 24. The weight and spring of air asserted; 25. Hobbs' explications examined; 26. Explications considered; 27. Other passages in Hobbs' dialogue examined; 28. What Mr. Hobbs teaches concerning fluidity and firmness examined; 29. Explanation of the engine used in experiments on air; 30. New experiments concerning the spring and weight of the air. II., Bk. III., Chap. 1. Experiments touching the spring and weight of the air; 2. Continuation of physico-mechanical experiments; 3. Experiments on air; 4. Preservation of bodies in vacuo Boyleano; 5. Experiments about respiration, upon ducks, vipers, frogs, etc.; 6. Animadversions on Hobbs' problemata de vacuo; 7. Cause of attraction by suction; 8. The barometer; 9. Statical baroscope; 10. Discovery of the rarefaction of the air, even without heat; 11. Duration of the spring of expanded air; 12. Condensation and compression of the air; 13. Differing extension of the same quantity of air rarefied and compressed; 14. New experiments on air; 15. Statical hygroscope; 16., 17. Utilities of hygroscopes; 18. Air's moisture; 19. Unheeded causes of the insalubrity and salubrity of the air; 20. Hidden qualities of the air; 21. Additional experiments; 22. Celestial and aerial magnets; 23. Mechanical production of magnetic qualities; 24. Experiments; 25. Mechanical origin of electricity; 26. History of the air. Bk. IV., Chap. 1. Mechanical production of tastes; 2. Of odours; 3. Changes of colour; 4. History of colours; 5. Whiteness and blackness; 6. Experiments concerning whiteness and blackness; 7. Third part of the history of colours. III. Appendix to Bk. IV., Chap. 1. Mechanical production of cold; 2. Weather-glasses; 3. Weather-glasses, continued, and hermetical thermometers; 4. Cause of the condensation of the air, and ascent of water by cold in common weather-glasses; 5. History of cold; 6. An examen of antiperistasis; 7. Hobbs' doctrine of cold examined; 8. Freezing experiment by Dr. Merret; 9. New frigorific experiment; 10. Positive and privitive nature of cold; 11. Two problems about cold; 12. Mechanical origin of heat; 13. Of mercury growing hot with gold; 14. To make fire and flame ponderable; 15. Additional experiments about the weighing of igneous particles; 16. Perviousness of glass to ponderable parts of flame; 17. Relation betwixt flame and air; 18. Relation betwixt air and the flamma vitalis of animals; 19. Explosions; 20. Relation betwixt light and air, in shining wood and fishes; 21. Resemblances and differences between burning coal and shining wood; 22. Shining flesh; 23. Diamond that shines in the dark; 24. The aerial noctiluca; 25. Icy noctiluca. Bk. V., Part I., Chap. 1. Relative levity of bodies under water; 2. Pressure of the air's spring on bodies under water; 3. Effect of the varying weight of the atmosphere upon some bodies under water; 4. Differing pressure of heavy bodies and fluids; 5. Invention for estimating the weight of water in water; 6. Hydrostatical paradoxes; 7. Hydrostatical discourse; 8. A new essay instrument; 9. Growth and increase of metals; 10. Hydrostatical way of estimating ores; 11. Medicina hydrostatica; 12. Hydrostatical stereometry applied to the materia medica. Bk. V., Part II., Chap. 1. An account of a strangely self-moving liquor; 2. Preserving of birds; 3. Bladders of air found in fishes; 4. Contents.—Introduction; An endeavor to prove that reason is alone sufficient to the firm establishment of religion, which must, on principles of faith, be ever precarious; Appendix; A form of daily prayer, for the professors of rational theism; A physical enquiry into the powers and properties of spirit, and how far, by analogical inferences resulting from experimental and natural phenomena, the human intellect may be enabled to attain any rational conception of omnipotence; Postscript; Revision of the postscript; My final farewell to this interesting subject; Cursory remarks on infancy and education; Thoughts on the rise and decline of the polite arts; Translation of the fifth canto of Dante's inferno, and of the entire scene and narrative of Huggolino; Observations on the advantages attending an elevated and dry situation; Considerations on the destructive application of gold; A free enquiry into the enormous increase of attorneys, with some serious reflections on the abuse of our excellent laws, by an unfeigned admirer of genuine British jurisprudence. And a postscript, in which the reform of our parliamentary constituency is Contents.—Vol. I. The author's life; Truth exalted; The sandy foundation shaken; Innocency with her open face, presented by way of apology for the book entitled "The sandy foundation shaken"; An epistle containing a salutation to all faithful friends, a reproof to the unfaithful, and a visitation to the inquiring, in a solemn farewell to them all in the land of my nativity; The people's ancient and just liberties asserted in the trial of Wm. Penn and Wm. Mead, at the sessions held at the Old Bailey, in London, the 1st, 3d, 4th and 5th of September, 1670, against the most arbitrary procedure of that court; Appendix, by way of defence for the prisoners; The Christian quaker, and his divine testimony stated and vindicated, from scripture, reason, and authority; No cross, no crown; No cross, no crown, Part II. II. A discourse of the general rule of faith and practice, and judge of controversy; A treatise of oaths; The great case of liberty of conscience once more briefly debated and defended by the authority of reason, scripture and antiquity; A reasonable caveat against popery; The proposed comprehension soberly and not unreasonably considered; A letter to the council and state of the city of Embden; Wisdom justified of her children, from the ignorance and calumny of H. Halliwell, in his book, called "An account of familism," as it is revived and propagated by the quakers; England's present interest considered, with honour to the prince and safety to the people; A letter to the princess and countess at Hertford, in Germany; A summons, or call, to Christendom; Tender council and advice, by way of epistle; To all those professors of Christianity that are externally separated from the visible sects and fellowships in the Christian world, so called, wherever hidden or scattered; True knowledge, which is life eternal, from God the father, through Jesus Christ, be increased; A tender visitation, in the love of God, that overcomes the world; Travels in Holland and Germany; A persuasive to moderation to church dissenters, in prudence and conscience; Good advice to the church of England, Roman catholic, and protestant dissenter; Just measures, in an epistle of peace and love, to such professors of truth as are under any dissatisfaction about the present order practised in the church of Christ. III. An address to protestants of all persuasions; Saul smitten to the ground; An epistle to the children of light in this generation, called of God to be partakers of eternal life in Jesus Christ, the Lamb of God, and light of the world; England's great interest in the choice of this new parliament; One project for the good of England; A brief examination and state of liberty spiritual; A letter from Wm. Penn, proprietor and governor of Pennsylvania, in America, to the committee of the free society of traders of that province, residing in London; The new Athenians no noble Bereans; A key, opening the way to every capacity how to distinguish the religion professed by the people called quakers, from the perversions and misrepresentations of their adversaries; A reply to a pretended answer, by a nameless author, to W. Penn's key; Some fruits of solitude, in reflections and maxims relating to the conduct of human life; A brief account of the rise and progress of the people called quakers; Primitive Christianity revived, in the faith and practice of the people called quakers; A testimony to the truth of God, as held by the people called quakers; A defence of a paper entitled gospel truths, against the exceptions of the bishop of Cork's testimony; The advice of W. Penn to his children, relating to their religious conduct.
